Contact is published monthly for KMOS PBS members and viewers. We work to ensure accuracy at press time, but last minute changes are sometimes unavoidable. We welcome your comments, questions and suggestions.

As the United States reaches its 250th anniversary, it is a good time to think about what has helped keep our country strong. Public media is one of those things. It is built on the ideas of free speech and a free press. These ideas help make sure everyone can learn, not just people who can pay for it.

Public media is different from most TV and radio. It is not made to earn money. Instead, it is made to serve people. This matters because a free press is not just about speaking freely. It is also about being able to find information you can trust. Public media gives people news and learning without trying to sell something. It also shares many different viewpoints and helps people understand each other better.

PBS has had a big impact on American culture. Most of us grew up watching shows like Mister Rogers, Sesame Street, and The Electric Company. Kids have learned to read and think from these types of programs. Adults have learned about history, science, and important issues from shows like Nature and NOVA. PBS tells stories from all kinds of people and places, helping us see the full picture of our country. Local stations like KMOS bring this mission closer to home. We share local stories, support the community, and provide trusted information. This work helps people feel connected and informed.

As we celebrate 250 years, we should also think about the future. Free speech and a free press need support to stay strong. Supporting KMOS is one way to do that. When you give, you help keep trusted information and learning available for everyone. If you are already a member, thank you. We appreciate your support. If you are not a member, this is a great time to become one.

The American Southwest

July 8 at 8 p.m.

An unforgettable journey down the mighty Colorado River. Narrated by Quannah Chasinghorse, the film beautifully showcases the region's abundant wildlife, confronts the ecological impacts of dams and water overuse, and advocates for better management of the river. The movie is told through the perspective of some of the Southwest's most charming characters such as industrious beavers, bugling bull elk, and soaring condors. Between legendary landscapes and fascinating wildlife, The American Southwest aims to endear millions of people to better cherish, love, and conserve this unique region.

KMOS Membership Update 2026

KMOS is updating its current membership levels from $5 per month to $8 per month. There is nothing you need to do on your part. When your annual membership renews, we will make the change automatically, guaranteeing that your membership continues uninterrupted.
